Narrator: One answer to the air pollution problem, would be to eliminate the cars and trucks and buses. But try to imagine a world without them. At Texaco, we're working on better answers. Overall, Texaco is spending millions of dollars annually to improve the quality of our environment. The new Texaco gasolines are designed to help cut pollution and improve your car's performance. And they're only a part of our efforts. Sure, we might get around without the cars, but we think a better answer is better cars, and better gasolines. We're working to keep your trust.
