

- Thea, I know you're a good mother, and I don't mean to criticize, but.

- What is it?

- You use Pampers diapers, and I thought cloth was better.

- Definitely not, Janet. I'd never used anything but Pampers. That special quilted lining keeps him a lot drier.

- Drier than cloth?

- You bet, and I've tried both. A cloth diaper is just a piece of cloth. It stays wet, but Pampers' quilted lining adds a layer of dryness between the wet padding and your baby's skin.

Janet: Really?

Thea: If you wet both, wait a minute and slip in a blotter, you'll see Pampers' special quilted lining keeps your baby's skin a lot drier than cloth.

- And drier's gotta feel better.

- Sure does.

Narrator: Pampers' quilted lining keeps your baby a lot drier than cloth. Doesn't your baby deserve Pampers dryness?
