

- Trim, youthful health, year after year after year. A longer prime of life. That's what new high-protein, low-fat, Gaines Meal give your dog. Take Duke here, going on eight, but still peppy as a pup. You and I know how important the right foods are in keeping young and active. So Duke eats new high-protein, low-fat Gaines Meal, the concentrated dog food. A cup of Gaines has 50% more protein, as much protein as a cup and a half of this puffed up food. That's right, 50% more protein than this other meal. And as for fat, you can actually feel it in the puffy food. Even see it. But no greasy, excess fat in Gaines. So give your dog the new high-protein, low-fat nourishment he needs for a longer prime of life. New Gaines Meal.
