Interviewer: Susan, thank you very much for being interviewed. If you could please say your full name?

Susan: Susan Halcomb Craig

Interviewer: Thank you!

Susan: Middle name h-a-l-c-o-m-b

Interviewer: Thank you for spelling that, that's helpful. And are you Lay or Clergy?

Susan: Clergy.

Interviewer: And your denomination affiliation if any?

Susan: Presbyterian Church, USA.

Interviewer: Thank you! And Susan, when and where were you born?

Susan: I was born in 1941, at what is called Yale New Haven Hospital, in New Haven, my dad was at Yale.

Interviewer: Oh, really? Okay! And where did you go to school?

Susan: (mumbles)

Interviewer: Oh go ahead, sorry.

Susan: I went to Stanford. Stanford and then Princeton Seminary, Theological Seminaries. And then (mumbles) Theological Seminary.

Interviewer: Oh wonderful, I interrupted you earlier. What were you going to say about your father at Yale?

Susan: Well it doesn't matter.

Interviewer: Okay. (laughs) The problem with the phone is that I'm not getting all the non verbal cues, so I apologize.

Susan: Yeah.

Interviewer: Susan, what work or Ministry were you doing at the time of Re-Imagining?

Susan: I was... The Chaplain and a professor at Rollas College, a Methodist College. Where I was teaching (mumbles), which is spelled which is spelled t-h-e-o-l, wait a minute, theology, t-h-e-a-l- (mumbles).

Interviewer: Oh.

Susan: That's where I was at the time of Re-Imagining.

Interviewer: Okay. And what work or ministry did you do after Re-Imagining?

Susan: I went to Mary Anne Lundy's, a women's ministry unit. And we were involved in the Presbyterian Church, and then I became the Pastor of the Universative Church, at USC.

Interviewer: Okay that's wonderful. Do you know about the time you would have become the Director of the Women's Ministry Unit? (long pause)

Susan: Re-Imagining was in '93. It was probably '92.

Interviewer: Okay. Right around that time, that's what I thought. Good.

Susan: Yeah, because in '96 I went to USC.

Interviewer: Okay.

Susan: That was three years. At Marry Anne's.

Interviewer: Susan, how and when did you first become aware of feminist theology?

Susan: It was at least 1980. Various ways, Somebody from the, I was at Hamilton College and (mumbles) at a group where I was. But I would go to work in the Chapel at Hamilton College and would immediately (mumbles)

Interviewer: Susan I'm sorry to interrupt, I'm going to pause this for just one minute. Sorry about that.
