Narrator: 92 jars, cans, and packages of Beech-Nut baby food. Believe it or not, that's just a week supply for the Brecker quadruplets. You're getting four times the usual experience feeding babies Mrs. Becker.

- All at once too.

Narrator: What do you think is most important?

Mrs. Brecker: How baby food tastes. If babies enjoy their food, you don't have to worry.

Narrator: You mean, they'll take the nourishment they need?

- If it tastes good and Beech-Nut does.

Narrator: Right, Mrs. Brecker. Take applesauce, Beech-Nut selects sweet, juicy apples. And their goodness isn't peeled away, they're cooked in their skins, retaining more natural vitamins and flavor.

- Getting the quads to eat is certainly not a problem.

Narrator: The Brecker quads, like most babies, eat best when they enjoy their food. That's why Beech-Nut caters to your baby's taste.
