

(trumpet fanfare)

Narrator: Each year American business sends it's men abroad to further the fortunes of this great country. These American boys from our giant corporations will be sent to different countries, where they will eat strange foods which will do strange things to their stomachs. In Japan, they will eat raw fish. In France they will eat snails. in Israel they will eat highly indigestible doughy objects called matzo balls. American business concerned about its men? You bet it is. They know their people will need something to help coat their stomachs against these exotic foods. They know their people will need something extra, an antacid for the hardships of being sick and away. Then what does American business do to take care of it's people going abroad? Israel, Pepto Bismol! Japan, Pepto Bismol! France, Pepto Bismol! Spain, Pepto Bismol! India, Pepto Bismol! Italy, Pepto Bismol!