

- Hello, my name is Ali MacGraw. How would you feel if someone you know, someone you care about, someone you love got cancer. One out of four Americans now living will get cancer and maybe somebody who really means a great deal to you will get it. Then what? With early diagnosis and treatment, the chances for a cure are good. But what if your friend, the one you love, has a cancer, we can't cure. The truth? The only hope is research. And right now there are life saving research projects being held up. Do you know why? Money. There simply isn't enough money. People always dig down and give after a tragedy. Don't wait. Please. Give now.
