

(Laughing) (Clapping) (Laughing)

Benny: A penguin on roller skates? Well, he must've gotten them for his birthday. (Laughing) You know ladies and gentleman, the reason I wanted Dan Blocker to be on this Shortest Girl: Hello Mr. Benny, remember us?

Benny: Well of course I do, I met you girls on my last show. Your father has a Texaco station.

Shortest Girl: Uh-huh.

Short Girl: Do you remember what we told you last time, Mr. Benny?

Benny: What's that?

Tall Girl: Sky Chief gasoline can drive down the cost of driving.

Benny: Oh yes, of course.

Tallest Girl: And that can save you money

Benny: Mmmm

Short Girl: And that's because sky chief keeps deposits from building up on valves better than any other leading gasoline.

Benny: I remember, I remember, (laughing)

Shortest Girl: Since tonight is your birthday, our daddy asked us to come a give you this present.

Benny: Awe. Oh my it's an invitation to come in for a free tankful of Texaco Sky Chief gasoline. Thank you.

Tallest Girl: Our daddy gave it to you because you're the only man who buys one gallon at a time.

Tall Girl: He'll try anything to get you to fill up. (laughing)

Benny: I knew it, I knew it. (laughing)

Shortest Girl: Oh, Mr. Benny, how old are you now?

Benny: Well now why don't you, how old do you think I am?

Shortest Girl: Oh, I don't know. 41, 42

Benny: Well, honey, that's awfully sweet of you, but I'm a little bit older than that. Guess again.

Shortest Girl: 75. (laughing)

Short Girl: Don't forget Mr. Benny, for products you can trust,

Girls singing: You can trust your car to the man who wears the star The big, bright Texaco Star

Benny: End of commercial?

Shortest Girl: End of commercial. (clapping)