

- Like I said, you'll never know who you'll run into in a supermarket like Mrs. Glenn Campbell and her baby.

- Come on Kane, hand mommy the Pampers. Pampers weren't around yet when Kelly and Travis were babies and disposable diapers weren't anything much to talk about. Then one day after Ken came along I asked Glenn to pick them up. Like the typical husband, he brought home another kind, Pampers. When I tried them and saw how much dryer they kept Kane. No more cloth diapers for this little guy.

- Did you ever take a close look at Pampers? Well, I'm curious. I like to take things apart and see how they work. Let me show you what I found out. When I cut open a Pampers. Now don't you pull the plates out like I'm doing they help keep moisture inside where it belongs, but look see this part inside next to your baby. This part is called a stay dry lining, when you wet it the moisture passes right through and there's all this absorbent stuff underneath to soak it all up. Now that's really soaked. But the lining, the part that's next to Kane, stays dryer. So he stays dryer and on the outside it's waterproof. So nothing can get out that way. So of course you don't need plastic pants. Quite a difference from cloth diapers, isn't it? Try it for yourself. Tear up a pamper. Kane. Oh no, I didn't mean the whole box full darling.
