

- Hey, funny face.

- Hi.

- Guess what? I'm going out of town tomorrow to the sales conference

- Out of town? Can't they send somebody else?

- No, honey, it's my big idea about the conveyor.

- Oh, can't you send them a letter?

- Uh, uh.

- A phone call? Smoke signal?

- No, honey. It's my idea about the conveyor and I've gotta be there to present it in person. It's a big opportunity.

- I know. I'm very happy. Got your tickets?

- Eastern Airlines.

- When will you be back?

- Same day, tomorrow night.

- Oh, you mean you'll be home tomorrow.

- Yeah, Eastern has a schedule where you go in the morning, come back in the evening.

- Oh! Honey, they're just going to love your idea about the conveyor.

- I love you.

Narrator: Eastern Airlines has same day return schedules to many cities, including Chicago and Atlanta. Eastern will fly you to your business meeting in the morning, then bring you home for a good night kiss. Wherever you want to go, call Eastern and ask. Getting home is half the fun. Come fly with Eastern.
(whistling music)