

Announcer: When all these bottles were full, they could quench a thirst or make a mouth water. But now empty bottles can have a new life. Used bottles are ground up and melted, (soft music) and used again to make new bottles. So the bottle you drank from last week may be part of the brand new bottle you drink from next week. That's the life cycle of glass. Maybe tomorrow you'll drink to it.